If your pet comes in matted nose to tail, there will be a minimum deposit asked to be put down. This deposit typically ranges between $200-$300 depending on the condition of the coat and size of the dog. The grooming service may be broken into many sessions for the safety and comfort of your pet. More money may be owed accordingly to how much time each session may take. If any money remains on your account once service is completed it will go towards the next groom that will be required to be booked within a timely manner.

The dematting process can be very painful, result in skin abrasions, bruising due to the lack of skin circulation being relieved, and all around very scary for the pet. With our compassionate and slow approach to dematting, these services have to be priced accordingly.

We may require a “session zero” where we go over the risks of matting and proper after care with you, have you sign consent forms and put the dog on the table and see if they will even tolerate the sessions before we take a deposit.

Alternatively we recommend these cases are done under anesthesia at a vet groomer where it can be done in one session under the supervision of medical staff.
